Alborán Golf is the municipal golf course of the city of Almería. It's a predominantly flat course, ideal for those who prefer to walk, measuring 6,278 meters from the back tees.

It's an 18-hole Championship "Par 72" course with a large driving range, and was built to host the 2005 Almería Mediterranean Games.

Alborán Golf offers a well-balanced course, in terms of length, orientation, and the placement of the various features that make up the course (bunkers, streams, lakes, natural ravines, etc.), allowing players to enjoy a challenging course that tests them on every single hole.

The 66 bunkers are strategically placed on each hole, ensuring players are never distracted. There are challenges for players of all handicaps, skill levels, and driving ranges.

Furthermore, Almería's climate makes it an ideal location for golf, thanks to the large number of hours of sunshine per year and the low rainfall, which makes this province a popular destination for golf tourists from central and northern Europe every year.

Alborán Golf boasts a privileged location, facing the Cabo de Gata-Níjar Natural Park, five minutes from the international airport and fifteen minutes from the city of Almería, in a new residential development featuring with four and five star hotels, a convention center, and a diverse range of restaurants. Its location and easy access are other advantages of this course, which is perfectly connected via the A7 motorway.
